RED ASHE WRECK AND RUIN.

OVER 100 MEN AT WORK AND ALL CAUGHT.

And Four-fifths of Them are Thought to be Killed—Heart-rending Scenes at the Mine's Mouth.

Charleston, W. Va., March 6—The greatest mining horror in the New River region occurred at Red Ashe, about eight o'clock this morning by an explosion in the drift mine of the Red Ashe Coal company. The mine was full of men and the explosion occurred near the entrance which was closed by falling slate. A relief crew was quickly at work. The working capacity of the mine is 175 men and it was being worked to its full capacity to fill rush orders. It is believed over 100 men were at work.

Already fifty bodies have been taken out and the work of rescue is still going on.

State Mine Inspector Pinkey is on the ground with a corps of experts lending all assistance possible.

The explosion made but little noise, and the accident was first discovered by a laborer at the entrance. The injured are being cared for as well as possible under the circumstances and every nerve is being strained to rescue those still in the mine. The scene of the accident is three miles above Thurmond, on the Chesapeake and Ohio road. The principal owner of the mine is J. Fred Effingham, of Staunton, Va. The manager is Ferdinand Howell.

It is believed that four-fifths of the men in the mine were killed.

The mines are on the mountain side above water and the coal is similar to that found in the Pocahontas district. On this account, it is said here that the accident cannot be caused by fire damp nor by gas, as supposed, but from dust as was the case in one of the tragedies some years ago in a Pocahontas mine. The district is a wild one on Rush Run, which is a south branch of New River, having its mouth at Thurmond. It is about 65 miles from this city. The miners occupied the dwellings in the vicinity of the mines.

The news of the disaster swept through the town like an electric shock and within a few minutes hundreds of men, women and children, relatives of the unfortunate miners, were crowded upon the scene of the disaster. As the conviction that the rescue of the entombed men alive was hopeless forced itself on the grief-stricken crowds, they became frantic in their endeavors to reach their dead and dying in the wrecked shaft, and the work of attempted rescue was organized with extreme difficulty. Of the first twelve men brought to the surface five were dead or died within a few minutes and several of the others were horribly burned or bruised.

As the work proceeded and the dead bodies were brought up one by one the scenes at the mouth of the shaft became distressing to the extreme. Shrieking, frantic women and children impeded the rescuers and added to the horror of the wreck.

LATEST REPORTS.

Wheeling, W. Va., March 7—Rescue work in the Red Ashe mine went on all night with more system than yesterday. Early this morning the reports indicated that the first reports exaggerated the loss of life. Latest reports are that twenty-seven dead bodies have been taken out, and forty or fifty are still entombed. It is not believed that any of those in the mine will escape, as the interior is burning. Sixty per cent of the dead are whites, eighty per cent married.

MR. GILMER WRITES HOME

Describes in a Snappy Way Life In The Philippines.

AN OWL-LIKE DELEGATION.

The Great Opportunity for the Ice and Saw Mill Men—A Rattling Picture of his Reception of Ambassdors.

By permission we print the following extracts from a letter to a friend in Greensboro from Capt. E. L. Gilmer, well known here, describing life in the Philippines where he is stationed.

Marti, Mindanao, P. I.,
Jan. 3rd, 1900.

We reached the city of Manilla on November 28th, staid there three days, long enough to do the town, then set out upon what has been almost a tour of the islands. We went around the north end of Luzon, going to M——, that is the largest northerly island in the group, and we are now located on the extreme south-eastern coast of the island of Mindanao, which is the most southerly island. We stopped at Iloilo, Jolo, Zamboanuga, and Danao. I think we have been in sight of about every island of the group. I like this station very much, and as mine is the only company here of course I am in command of the post, commander-in-chief, governor-general, mayor, and all these sort of things. Can't you come to see me? I think you would get rich in this country, you are just about smart enough.

This land to start with, is as rich as you ever saw; it will grow anything that is planted. All the open country is covered with fine grass, is good pasture land, and can be bought for one dollar an acre from individuals, and doubtless the government would sell for less. The timber land, of which there is a great deal, is full of fine timber, such as rosewood, mahogany, etc., so the natives say; I have not yet had time to examine them. I believe a man with a portable saw-mill could make a fortune. The town has been well laid out, but now few people live here, and I suppose half of it is owned by no one, so I can get some corner lots and get in on the ground floor.

There is said to be lots of gold in the mountains, I will investigate this as soon as I can. There is no ice in this part of the country, and the first man who puts in an ice plant at some central point here is going to coin money. There are but few stores, but a little shops run by Chinamen. In this place there is no store at all, though a Chinaman sells beer and gin to the natives, and he is rich through it. The people have nothing to eat and nothing to wear. You could buy up the remnants, odds and ends of the Cone Company, bring them over here and pay your expenses.

This island is full of deer. The men have killed nine in ten days. Wild boar are plentiful. I have wished for my gun several times already, for the fields are full of plover, a bird that looks like our woodcock, only larger.

Write me a letter and tell me what the boys are doing; there are some of them I am afraid I will never see again, even if I get back home.

You ought to come over and feel one of our earthquakes. I remember some time ago when we had the earthquake in Greensboro and everybody was talking about it. Our old friend, Dr. —— said: "Thunder, that is nothing, I was in a country once where I could not get off my hands and knees for half an hour at a time." I think this must have been the country. I remember how we used to go for the nervine during a thunder storm; well, they would put you to looking for it. Take care of the dogs and don't let the stock run about. How are the puppies? Give my regards to John Rufus Jessup and tell him I am going to write to him. Remember me to uncle John and tell him to write me a letter. When I learn anything about this place I will let you know. Remember me to all the boys.

Before I close I must tell you about some of the delegations of my subjects who came in to see me. The people who live in town and near here look fairly well civilized, but those who live back on the mountains are as wild as bucks. They send in a committee now and then to see me and bring me a little present of some sort, A squad of a Moro tribe came in to see me this morning, they are all dressed out in their gayest colors; some of them with all colors of clothing on—some of them with none, with spears, bows and arrows, and long knives, some with hats on that look like turtle shells, others with old turbans, they all chew beetle nut, which turns their teeth as black as tar, so you can imagine how they look. This squad came in today. The captain in addition to his outfit, had one of these little old valises (about a quart size) like our great grandfathers used to carry, strapped to him. Of course I could not talk to them and they could not talk English, so we could only look at each other and make signs. I brought out some whiskey, the meanest you ever saw, and hotter than Uncle John's "Sunny Brook," gave them a big slug all around, without any water, and you should have seen them look at me. They sat and blinked like a frog that had swallowed a coal of fire, it got to working on them and they all tried to talk at once. I thought I would never get rid of them.

THREE DEMOCRATS WILL VOTE

MAY MEAN DEFEAT FOR SENATOR McLAURIN OF SOUTH CAROLINA

He is Friendly to the Administration but Senator Tillman is Very Much Opposed.

Special to the Telegram.

Washington, March 7—Three democratic senators, it is announced will vote in favor of the passage of the Porto Rican bill. They are the two senators from Louisiana, and Senator McLaurin, of South Carolina. The announcement that the South Carolina senator may vote in favor of the Porto Rican bill is received with some surprise, although he has been known to be very friendly to President McKinley, and to the administration's foreign policy. If he carries out his intention, it may seriously affect his chances for re-election to the United States senate, as Senator Tillman is earnestly opposed to the enactment of the bill, as are also the entire South Carolina delegation in the house of representatives. The senator's term does not expire until 1903, but he has been thought heretofore to be assured of a re-election. The sentiment in his state is most decidedly in opposition to the passage of the protective tariff bill between this country and the new colony. To offset the probable democratic votes for the bill, three republican senators will vote with the democrats of the senate against the Porto Rican bill. They are Senator Mason, of Illinois, Hoar, of Massachusetts, and Wellington, of Maryland.

From North Carolina, it is said the vote will be divided on the bill in the senate. Senator Butler is opposed to the enactment of the bill, while it will receive the support of Senator Pritchard.

So far as is known all other Southern senators are opposed to the bill, including both of the Florida, Texas, and Mississippi senators.

Several candidates, it is said will be in the field for the democratic nomination to succeed the late Representatives Epes for the unexpired term. The gentleman who gets the democratic nomination will most likely be elected, and will stand the best chance for the nomination for the next term. Among the names announced are Judge Yarrell, who is well known in Washington having an extensive law practice here, Mr. Lassiter, who was formerly an office holder under President Cleveland, but who was removed because of his activity in political affairs in the Old Dominion. Mr. Southall, a member of the legislature is also a candidate.

The republican nomination will be earnestly sought after also. It is said that Mr. Thorp who was formerly in congress may be a candidate. A negro by the name of Jones is also working to secure the republican nomination.

Mr. Archie P. Maddox, formerly of Alexandria, Virginia, who is also well known in Washington city, having many acquaintances here, it is announced has become editor of the Eagle, a newspaper published at Bryan, North Carolina. Mr. Maddox has resided in North Carolina for only a short time.

Mr. R. W. Moore, a well known gentleman from Charlotte, North Carolina, is a freqent visitor to the National Capital. He is here on business, and is stopping at the National hotel. He will remain for only a day or so.

BOERS MASSING AT OSFONTEIN

GREATEST BATTLE OF THE WAR NOW BREWING.

Joubert is in Supreme Command And Faces Roberts—Working Night And Day on Trenches.

London, March 7—The Boers are massing at Osfontein for one of the greatest battles yet fought. General Joubert is in supreme command and faces Roberts. He is bringing up men and guns from all directions. The Boers occupy twenty-seven kopjes north and south of Modder river, and are working day and night digging trenches. Breastworks, fortresses, kopjes, hills, and ridges bristle with cannon and Mausers. The number of men and guns are not exactly determined. Roberts wishes the Boers to mass, so that he may strike a decisive blow.

Later—Roberts wires from Osfontein that the Boers are in full retreat and being pursued by cavalry, horse artillery and mounted infantry.

WILL FIGHT TO THE DEATH.

Brussels, March 7—President Kruger and Steyn have sealed an alliance between the Transvaal and Free State, pledging each republic to fight to the death. This news was cabled the Transvaal legation here today by President Kruger, in giving an account of the conference between the two presidents. It adds that there was a confident hope that resistance would inspire intervention of the powers to prevent the extinction of the two republics.

The Shark's Mouth.

No doubt the shark's mouth is placed so much beneath the projecting muzzle, under which also the nostrils lie, that it may serve its proper purpose in the habits of the fish we are told that it can and does bite out large chunks of flesh from the dead bodies of whales and even from living victims of its attacks, and it is easily seen that if its mouth was like that of other fishes the necessary leverage would be lacking. A further reason seems to be that the shark by this peculiar position of its mouth is compelled to turn upon its back to strike and is thus able to deliver its onset from below with more deadly effect.

This formidable strength of jaw is backed up by a most terrible array of teeth, of which in some species there are as many as six rows all around. Each tooth is saw edged and pointed, and some of the largest are as much as two inches in breadth at the base. These lie flat against the jaws and can be raised by separate muscles at will, so that, as the shark darts upon its prey, they spring on end, as a cat's claws are stuck out from its paws. This arrangement will not allow anything once bolted to return, so that a shark's mouth is a veritable death trap. —Cincinnati Enquirer.

To "Sock."

This word is in constant use in Northamptonshire, England. It has two meanings, one being "to throw;" e. g., "I'll sock a stone at you." A favorite diversion among boys is "socking" birds. They proceed along the hedges, one boy or more on each side, all armed with stones, with which they unmercifully pelt, or "sock," any poor bird they come across. The other meaning of the word is "to beat or to clout;" e. g., "I'll fetch you a sock o' the earhole."

I have known "sock" in this connection all my life, and it is sometimes now used here. "I'll sock him," "I'll give him bellsock," "He got a good socking" are common forms. A formidable fighter is called "a bellsocker." "Sock" is common when speaking of "thrashings" given and taken.

"To give one socks," meaning "to give one a good beating," is in common use in East Anglia. And so is "pull up your socks" for "make haste" and "set to work."

A stone in the heel of a sock or stocking is a well known extempore life preserver or taker.—Notes and Queries.

Regard For the Fox In Japan.

All over Japan you will see images of foxes—old foxes, with their noses chipped and their ears broken off; older foxes still, with a growth of moss on their backs; sly, alert foxes, with noses perked smartly in the air; great foxes and little foxes, sages and clowns, all kinds and degrees, showing the prevalence of this belief in the land of the wistaria and the fan and also showing in what respect the fox is held. It is curious to note that in all countries the fox, above all other animals, has been considered to exert great influence and power. All nations have legends of which the cunning and intelligence of the fox are the theme.

Charity.

Every good act is charity. Giving water to the thirsty is charity; removing stones and thorns from the road is charity; exhorting your fellow men to virtuous deeds is charity; smiling in your brother's face is charity; putting a wanderer in the right path is charity. A man's true wealth is the good he does in this world. When he dies, mortals will ask, "What property has he left behind him?" But angels will inquire, "What good deeds hast thou sent before thee?"—Mohammed.

Lucky Hesitation.

"I never was glad for this impediment in my speech but once," said the man from Dearborn, who was in to see the town.

"When was that?"

FOR THE BABIES.

There is no better medicine for the babies than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Its pleasant taste and prompt and effectual cures make it a favorite with mothers and small children. It quickly cures their coughs and colds, preventing pneumonia or other serious consequences. It also cures croup and has been used in tens of thousands of cases without a single failure so far as we have been able to learn. It not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the croupy cough appears, will prevent the attack. In cases of whooping cough it liquefies the tough mucous, making it easier to expectorate, and lessens the severity and frequency of the paroxysms of coughing, thus depriving that disease of all dangerous consequences. WEDNESDAY, MAR. 7, 1900.

THE PORTO RICAN TARIFF MUDDLE.

For many a day there has not been a measure in the congress of the United States about which the members were more befuddled than this Porto Rico tariff bill. All men should be charitable towards our law makers on the general principle that this much to be praised leniency should be bestowed where it is needed. But the utmost elasticity of one's feelings in this direction cannot make it out that more than one fourth of the members of the lower house of our national legislature knew any intelligible reason, outside of a party one, why they were voting as they were. For this fact, of course, no one with any degree of fair mindedness, can blame a congressman, especially at this particular season of the year when their constituents' interests must be looked after. Now is the critical moment for the judicious distribution of seeds, and if the time is lost no other occasion will present itself before the next election. Beside that it is enough for a congressman to do to look out for re-election, why should he throw his time away on tariffs and the like, when it is so easy to vote with the party and give that as a reason for his vote?

But, really, the average congressman was most certainly excusable for being befuddled on the Porto Rican tariff bill; not a one of them appears to be more befuddled than Mr. McKinley himself, to whose influence is due the passage of the bill. The smaller republics seem to have gotten but one clear idea on the whole subject, and that was that the bill was a party measure, originating somewhere, somehow, by whom or for what purpose was as puzzling and uninteresting to them as the nebula hypothesis is to amorous adolesence at the time when a "brighter iris comes upon the burnished dove." To the average man, citizen or congressman, it would appear that the president for some reason, has been guilty of juggling. Beginning in his message with the most emphatic declaration that "our plain duty is to establish free trade" between this island and the United States, he ended by dictating a tariff bill to his secretary of war, and his name was the lash which the party whip used to finally drive the measure through. Why this change the public does not know; the only reason yet offered is the rather hackneyed one of humanitarianism, the good of the people of the island, and when the bill passed the president tossed out, as a boquet to the grand stand, his bill turning back into the treasury of the island all the revenue previously collected from tariffs on its products, amounting to $2,000,000. All this fuss and fuddle was put on the ground that the people of the island were suffering and needed help and if this help did not come through a tariff measure it must come directly out of the United States treasury. We are not accustomed to look for ulterior motives, it is a bad habit to get into, but we can but believe that behind all this there is something not yet let out. What is it?

MERCURY AGAIN RISING IN THE DARK AND BLOODY GROUND.

We are prone to poke fun at some of our sister republics of South America, where a revolution and a change of goverment are as common as a morning meal; where a citizen must, upon going out in the morning, carefully enquire who is ruling the roost, lest there has been a change while he slept and he unconsciously offend the governing power. But when we cast about home a bit we may decide that we have little to plume ourselves on.

Here is Kentucky. For weeks the smouldering fires of civil war have scarce been suppresed; one half of the people of the state claiming allegiance to one government and the other half to another; the leader of one faction assassinated and his rival indicted, at least in the hearts of one faction, as the murderer. However, we did not start out for the purpose of moralizing, but merely to call attention to the latest move in the sad wrangle in Kentucky. A Louisville despatch says that the Goebelites yesterday announced their purpose to attempt an idictment of every man who was in the executive building, from which the shot was fired at the time Goebel was killed. In detail it says:

The accused will be charged with conspiracy. In the executive building at the hour the fatal shot was fired were Governor Taylor and his secretary, Treasurer Day, State Auditor Sweeny, and all other state officials of the ursurpation. Harlan Whittaker, the man charged with the murder of Goebel, broke down this morning, and while weeping, is said to have made a confession to the jailer of Franklin county, accusing prominent men of complicity in the assassination. Whittaker is said to be the man who sent this telegram to Butler county on the day of Goebel's assassination:

"The mule will cross the river today between 10 and 12 o'clock."

Morgantown, Butler county, is off the railroad, and the message had to be telephoned part of the way.

Whitaker's trial is docketed to come up today. It is altogether safe to predict that a varm time may be expected before this new scheme has run out. Something else which may be expected to contribute something towards keeping up the temperature is that the democratic part of the legislature is passing a bill appropriating $250,000, to be used by General Cartleman in raising an army large enough to march to London and recapture the state's Gatlin guns and ammunition sent there by Taylor.

Life Still a Horrid Grind.

Chicago Tribune.

"It ought to be easy to make a living here," the visitor from the frozen North remarked.

"Why so?" asked the resident of the tropics.

"Because you have nothing to do but reach out and pull off your bananas and your bread fruit."

"Ah no!" rejoined the other, turning languidly in his hammock "Sometimes we have to climb the trees to get them. I tell you, life here is no picnic."

ROBBED THE GRAVE

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows; "I was in a most dreadful condition tion. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides; no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying Electric Bitters: and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents per bottle at C. E. Holton's drug store.

"A Philidelphia woman who went shopping twenty years ago just returned home," read Mrs. Bellingham in the paper.

"It took a long time to match that ribbon," commented Mr. Bellingham.

STORY OF A SLAVE.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. Geo. D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle-working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, rundown people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by C. E. Holton, druggist.

"Every man should have a purpose in life," remarked the severe old lady, as she sized up the tramp through her steel-rimmed spectacles. "Yes'm," said the tramp. "Mine's makin' footprints in de sand o' time; an' dere don't seem ter be much doin' here. I guess I'll make a few tracks."

PREVENTED A TRAGEDY.

Timely information given Mrs. George Long, of New Straitsville, O., prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. A frightful cough had kept her awake every night. She tried many remedies and doctors but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle cured her, and she writes this marvelous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of pneumonia. Such cures are positive proof of the matchless merit of this grand remedy for curing all throat, chest and lung troubles. Only 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at C. E. Holton's drug store.

"Where are you going, my pretty maid?"

"I'm going to work, kind sir," she said,

"Art going a-milking my pretty maid?"

"Nay, nay, I'm not so old fashioned," she said.

"My work, kind sir, is a-making glue."

"Aha!" he exclaimed. "I am stuck on you!"

Varying Effects of Accidents.

"Years ago," said a Maine man, "I was standing beside a gun at a state muster at Augusta when a salute to the governor, who had just come on the field, was being fired. The cannon used was of the old fashioned kind, and it was prematurely discharged, with the result that the index finger of the right hand of the man ramming the load home was blown off. The shock, together with the lodgment of flying particles of powder, had the effect of driving the blood back from the wound, during which fragment of time the injured man calmly examined his mangled hand, but when the blood did come back it came with a rush and fairly bubbled out in a torrent. The man's calmness left him as if by magic at the sight of the blood, and, with a loud scream, he keeled over in a dead faint.

"They used to tell a story of two men who were working on opposite sides of a buzzsaw. The attention of one becoming momentarily distracted, he ran his finger against the saw, and the severed piece dropped on the other side, where his partner was working. That worthy picked it up and, with the casual remark, 'Bill, you've dropped something,' handed it back to its owner. Bill didn't faint, but it is only owing to the superior burst of speed developed by his partner that he is not doing time for homicide."—New York Tribune.

Cabs Not Admitted.

Americans visiting London for the first time are more than likely to hail a hansom the day they arrive and start promptly to see the row. Half the books, stories, newspaper articles, etc., treating of English life make prominent mention of this the smartest driveway in the world. London society circles largely about Hyde park, and naturally enough tourists regard it as a good starting place from which to study British manners and peoples.

Imagine, then, the indignation and the disgust of a pair of pretty girls, accustomed to traverse home drives in any fashion they like, warned back from Hyde park entrance by a six foot arm of the law. No tips, no remonstrance, no pleading, has the slightest effect upon the stern "bobby," who simply orders cabby to depart and tells his fares to get a more correct equipage if they desire to take part in the row parade.

It is livery or nothing, and if the visitor continues to long for a glimpse of the Hyde park show she must have boots and breeches to drive her, thereby having at least the semblance of a private establishment. No admittance is the standing rule for the ostensible cab.—Boston Globe.

A Bad Man to Interrupt.

"W'en Moses tell de sun ter stan' still"— began the old deacon.

"Dat warn't Moses," interjected a brother in the amen corned; "dat was Joshua!"

"Ez I said," continued the deacon, "w'en Joshua tell de sun"—

"Yoh didn't say dat at all!" said the brother who had corrected him. "Hit wuz me dat said hit! Hit wuz me dat tuck yoh up to hit!"

The deacon's patience was exhausted. He folded his brass rimmed spectacles, laid them carefully on the table before him, walked over to the amen corner, took the objecting brother by both arms from behind and, with the swish of a cyclone, swept him forward toward the door, landing him precipitately in outer darkness.

"Ez I wuz sayin foh dis little incident occurred," he continued, "w'en Moses tole Joshua ter tell de sun ter stan' still"—

Some of the older, learned brethren moved uneasily in their seats. They looked as if they wanted to correct him, but they did not. They let it go at that. —Atlanta Constitution.

Character In the Hair.

If your hair is fine, it denotes gentle birth. If the ends cling together, it is a sign of great intellectuality, and a tendency to curl shows inherent grace and a poetic nature.

These are some of the things set forth by the science of hair reading, yet undeveloped, but likely to "give us away" in a manner often more accurate than pleasing.

This science tells us, too, that the person with straight hair has a firm, positive and practical disposition. Color shows the temperament. For instance, it is well to watch out for the person with black, lusterless hair. He's apt to be treacherous and jealous. The lighter the hair the more sensitive and "touchy" its owner. Brown hair belongs to him who has common sense, good judgment and reason in high degree, which would indicate that humanity isn't even half bad. Red hair shows honesty and cleverness.

The Turkish Autocrat.

The sultan of Turkey rises at 6 and after devoting the whole morning to work with his secretaries breakfasts at noon. After this he takes a drive or a row on the lake in his vast park. At 8 he dines and amuses himself during the evening with his family, listening while his daughter plays on the piano. He is extremely fond of music. The sultan dresses like an English gentleman, but invariably in a frock coat, the breast of which on great occasions is richly embroidered and blazing with decorations. There are over 400 cooks and scullions employed in the imperial palace.

Suspicions Aroused.

Smith—What's wrong, old man? You look worried.

Jones—I am. You know I had my life insured last week?

Smith—Yes, but what has that got to do with it?

Jones—Well, the very next day my wife bought a new cookbook. Possibly it's all right, but it certainly looks suspicious.—Chicago News.

An Editor's Life Saved by Chamberlain's Cough Remdy.

During the early part of October, 1896, I contracted a bad cold, which settled on my lungs and was neglected until I feared that consumption had appeared in an incipient state. I was constantly coughing and trying to expel something which I could not. I became alarmed and after giving the local doctor a trial bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the result was immediate improvement, and after I had used three bottles my lungs were restored to their healthy state.—B. BE A GOOD BOY! GOODBY!

How oft in my dreams I go back to the day
When I stood at our old wooden gate
And started to school in full battle array,
Well armed with a primer and slate,
And as the latch fell I thought myself free
And gloried, I fear, on the sly,
Till I heard a kind voice that whispered to me:
"Be a good boy! Goodby!"

"Be a good boy! Goodby!" It seems
They have followed me all these years;
They have given a form to my youthful dreams
And scattered my foolish fears;
They have staid my feet on many a brink,
Unseen by a blinded eye,
For just in time I would pause and think:
"Be a good boy! Goodby!"

Oh, brother of mine, in the battle of life,
Just starting or nearing its close,
This motto aloft, in the midst of the strife,
Will conquer wherever it goes!
Mistakes you will make, for each of us errs,
But, brother, just honestly try
To accomplish your best. In whatever occurs
"Be a good boy! Goodby!"

—John L. Shroy in Saturday Evening Post.

A PARTIALLY OBEYED ORDER

The Reporter Returned, but the Mule Was a Total Loss.

Harmon W. Brown of Ohio, who held a responsible place on the staff of General Rawlins during the civil war, tells the following story of the general's treatment of an intrusive reporter:

"One day before Vicksburg the correspondent of a certain paper went to General Rawlins for news.

"The general pondered a moment and took me one side.

"'Take this young man,' he said, 'up to the top of those trenches within a stone's throw of the enemy. Take him up there and lose him. I don't care what happens. Understand?'

"'I said I did, and we started through the lines. Both of us were mounted. I pointed out a crest overlooking the enemy and told him he could get a good view from that point.

"'Ain't you coming with me?' he asked.

"'No,' I replied. 'I know all I want to know.'

"So he started alone. As soon as the top of his hat and the tips of his mule's ears showed above the crest there came a volley of musketry ten yards wide that cut the air like a big knife blade. The crown of his hat was sliced off as with shears. He managed to drop to the ground in safety, but the persevering mule was literally filled with lead. After the firing ceased the correspondent crawled to the spot where I was.

"'Did you learn what you wanted to know?' I asked.

"'Eh?' gasped the correspondent, wiping his face and looking at his hands to see whether they were bloody, 'What I wanted to know? Oh, yes, of course. The enemy are over that ridge all right.'

"When we returned to headquarters, General Rawlins saw us and hailed me. I went inside his tent.

"'I thought I told you to lose that confounded reporter somewhere,' he said testily.

"'I did the best I could, sir,' I answered. 'He came back, but I have the honor to report the mule a total loss.'"—Saturday Evening Post.

A Navajo Superatition.

No Navajo Indian will ever make a campfire of wood from a tree that was struck by lightning or that might have been. If such a fire is made by an irreverent white man, the Indians will retire to a distance, where they cannot feel the heat or smell the smoke, and they will go to sleep in their blankets, fireless and supperless, rather than eat of food prepared on that kind of a fire. The Navajo believes that if he comes within the influence of the flame he will absorb some of the essence of the lightning which will thereafter be attracted to him and sooner or later will kill him. Up in the mountains more than half the great pines are scarred by lightning, but no wood from them is used. Almost any old Navajo can narrate instances where the neglect of this precaution has resulted disastrously, for men are sometimes killed by lightning in a region where thunderstorms are frequent, and it is but a step from the effect to the cause.

What Joseph Was.

The Sunday school teacher had been telling the class about Joseph, particularly with reference to his coat of many colors and how his father rewarded him for being a good boy, for Joseph, she said, told his father whenever he caught any of his brothers in the act of doing wrong.

"Can any little boy or girl tell me what Joseph was?" the teacher asked, hoping that some of them had caught the idea that he was Jacob's favorite.

"I know," one of the little girls said, holding up her hand.

"What was he?"

"A tattletale!" was the reply.—Baltimore News.

The Grenade Throwers.

The grenadiers, the senior of British regiments which compose the brigade of guards, got its name from the fact that toward the end of the eighteenth century the men were armed with hand grenades to throw among the enemy. They had to be in the front of the fighting line; hence they gained a reputation for bravery and the name of the "grenadiers." The badge of the regiment is still a hand grenade spouting flames, though that deadly engine of war has long since been superseded. —Scottish-American.

SCROFULA AND ITS AWFUL HORRORS

—CURED BY—

Johnston's Sarsaparilla

QUART BOTTLES.

A MOST WONDERFUL CURE.

A Grand Old Lady Gives Her Experience.

Mrs. Thankful Orilla Hurd lives in the beautiful village of Brighton, Livingston Co., Mich. This venerable and highly respected lady was born in the year 1812, the year of the great war, in Hebron, Washington Co., New York. She came to Michigan in 1840, the year of "Tippecanoe and Tyler too." All her faculties are excellently preserved, and possessing a very retentive memory, her mind is full of interesting reminiscences of her early life, of the early days of the State of Michigan and the interesting and remarkable people she has met, and the stirring events of which she was a witness. But nothing in her varied and manifold recollections are more marvelous and worthy of attention than are her experiences in the use of JOHNSTON'S SARSAPARILLA. Mrs. Hurd inherited a tendency and predisposition to scrofula, that terribly destructive blood taint which has cursed and is cursing the lives of thousands and marking thousands more as victims of the death angel. Transmitted from generation to generation, it is found in nearly every family in one form or another. It may make its appearance in dreadful running sores, in unsightly swellings in the neck or goitre, or in eruptions of varied forms. Attacking the mucous membrane, it may be known as catarrh in the head, or developing in the lungs it may be, and often is, the prime cause of consumption.

Speaking of her case, Mrs. Hurd says: "I was troubled for many years with a bad skin disease. My arms and limbs would break out in a mass of sores, discharging yellow matter. My neck began to swell and became very unsightly in appearance. My body was covered with scrofulous eruptions. My eyes were also greatly inflamed and weakened, and they pained me very much. My blood was in a very bad condition and my head ached severely at frequent intervals, and I had no appetite. I had sores also in my ears. I was in a miserable condition, I had tried every remedy that had been recommended, and doctor after doctor had failed. One of the best physicians in the state told me I must die of scrofulous consumption, as internal abcesses were beginning to form. I at length was told of Dr. Johnston, of Detroit, and his famous Sarsaparilla. I tried a bottle, more as an experiment than anything else, as I had no faith in it, and greatly to my agreeable surprise, I many bottles. But I steadily improved until I became entirely well. All the sores healed up, all the bad symptoms disappeared. I gained perfect health, and I have never been troubled with scrofula since. Of course an old lady of 83 years is not a young woman, but I have had remarkably good health since then, and I firmly believe that JOHNSTON'S SARSAPARILLA is the greatest blood purifier and the best medicine in the wide world, both for scrofula and as a spring medicine." This remarkably interesting old lady did not lok to be more than sixty, and she repeated several times, "I believe my life was saved by JOHNSTON'S SARSAPARILLA."

PLUM TOBACCO

IS OLD VIRGINIA SUN CURED & consequently posesses a finer flavor & better chewing qualities than any other variety

They are only bubbles, those maiden fancies of love, marriage and motherhood. But what beautiful bubbles they are! Who does not wish that all these fancies could end as did the old fairy stories, "and they lived happy ever after." Pain soon pricks the bubbles, and nothing remains of all the hope and gladness of the bride but a bridal veil and a piece of stale wedding cake.

The only way in which happiness can be realized in marriage is by being forearmed against its dangers. Most young women are ignorant of the fact that irregularity means a derangement of the womanly functions which may lead far reaching consequences after marriage. Often this derangement at first start there often follows the drains, ulcerations and inflammations which make life one long misery.

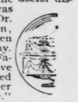
A certain cure for irregularity and other diseases peculiar to women is found in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It contains no alcohol neither opium, cocaine nor other narcotic.

"I was so weak I did not have breath to walk across my room," writes Miss Isbell Miller, of New Providence, Calloway Co., Ky. "My periods occurred too often and the hemorrhage would be prolonged and the loss of blood very excessive. I also had spells which the doctor said were fainting fits. My stomach would cramp and I could not straighten. I did not gain a pound from one monthly period to another; was very weak and nervous all the time. The doctor told me he did not know what was the cause of my trouble and that I would never be any better. I lived in this way from sixteen years old to twenty-three, when the doctor dismissed my case. After this I was induced by a kind friend to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which I did and before I had taken one bottle of it I could work all day. I took in all six bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' and about five vials of Dr. Pierce's Pellets. I used no other medicine. I have never had a return of this trouble since."



Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets clear the complexion and sweeten the breath.

"This is what I call a narrow escape," remarked the son of William Tell as his father shot the apple from his head. History does not record this bonmot, but, then, has many sins of omission to answer for.

Rev. E. W. Sitzer, W. Caton, N.Y., writes: "I had dyspepsia over twenty years, and tried doctors and medicines without benefit. I was persuaded to use Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and it helped me from the start. I believe it to be a panacea for all forms of indigestion." It digests what you eat. Howard Gardner.

Words of Praise from a Banker

Mr. Chas. E. Currier, of the Atlanta National Bank, is very careful with his words, not only in financiering, but in his conversation generally. He suffered much from indigestion, and writes: "I have used Tyner's Dyspepsia Remedy in attacks of acute indigestion and have always found it to give instantaneous relief. I consider it a medicine of high merit.

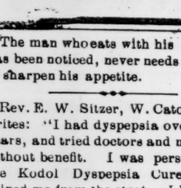
WINE OF CARDUI

A LITTLE DOES MUCH.



BOONE, IOWA, Dec. 14.

No tongue can tell what I have endured in the past ten years with my monthly sickness. While suffering untold agony, a friend called and recommended Wine of Cardui. I sent for a bottle, and Oh! what relief. After the first dose I began to feel better and have had no pain since.

MRS. GRACE LAMPHERE.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Wine of Cardui not only cures but it acts AT ONCE. Here is a case of ten years' standing, and yet one single dose made the sufferer feel better, and stopped the pain. The Wine goes straight to the seat of the trouble. It acts directly upon the menstrual and genital organs. Its action is not violent, and it does not force a result. It simply gives Nature that little assistance that the sufferer's system lacks. A single disorder in the feminine organs spreads many disorders all over the body, and when the Wine cures the source, all the other ills vanish as a matter of course. A woman can be her own physician and cure herself at home. Local examinations are largely things of the past—the obnoxious custom is no longer necessary. Wine of Cardui is the only perfectly safe and sure vegetable Wine made to-day for the cure of "female troubles".

Eczema! The Only Cure.

Eczema is more than a skin disease, and no skin remedies can cure it. The doctors are unable to effect a cure, and their mineral mixtures are damaging to the most powerful constitution. The whole trouble is in the blood, and Swift's Specific is the only remedy which can reach such deep-seated blood diseases.

Eczema broke out on my daughter, and continued to spread until her head was entirely covered. She was treated by several good doctors, but grew worse, and the dreadful disease spread to her face. She was taken to two celebrated health springs, but received no benefit. Many patent medicines were taken, but without result, until we decided to try S. S. S., and by the time the first bottle was finished, her head began to heal. A dozen bottles cured her completely and left her skin perfectly smooth. She is now sixteen years old, and has a magnificent growth of hair. Not a sign of the dreadful disease has ever returned.

H. T. SHOAR, 2704 Lucas Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

Don't expect local applications of soaps and salves to cure Eczema. They reach only the surface, while the disease comes from within. Swift's Specific is the only cure and will reach the most obstinate case. It is far ahead of all similar remedies, because it cures cases which are beyond their reach. S. S. S. is purely vegetable, and is the only blood remedy guaranteed to contain no potash, mercury or other mineral.

Out of the Ordinary.

The two old friends, as has been narrated before, met again after years of separation.

"By the way, Gagster," said Throggins, "do you remember that snub nosed, cross eyed little Tilbury girl, with a face on her that would ditch an express train? She used to live somewhere in your neighborhood, I think."

"Oh, yes, I remember her perfectly," replied Gagster.

"What ever became of her?"

"I'm sorry to disappoint you, Throggins"—here is where the variation comes in—"but I have not the slightest idea. I didn't marry her."—Chicago Tribune.

Wanted to Sit In Her Own Lap.

The little 3-year-old daughter of one of the leading ministers in Little Rock resents too great familiarity. One evening, though she seemed a little unwilling, a young man, who was calling, took her upon his lap, whereupon she said, with great gravity:

"I want to sit in my own lap."

It is needless to add that the young man immediately put her down.

GRIM SABLE ISLAND.

THIS WRECK STREWN SAND BAR IS DOOMED BY THE SEA.

One of the Weird Legends of This Ocean Graveyard—A Woman In White, a Bleeding Forefinger and a Ring Sold In Halifax.

"Sable island belongs to Nova Scotia, is 145 miles from Halifax and 85 miles east of Cape Canso," writes Gustav Kobbe in Ainslee's. "It is a treeless, shrubless waste, seamed by wind and wave and of ever changing aspect. A cone shaped hill near the east end, once a mere undulation of sand, is now over 100 feet high and is still growing. Other hillocks are gradually being mowed away by storms. The hillocks are liable to be undermined so swiftly and swept out of existence that they are carefully watched from the various stations on the island, there being no certainty how far an inroad of the sea will extend after each successful attack. Even the coarse grass of the island grows in a different manner from that of the mainland. It does not bear seed, but shoots up from roots which run along under the sand. During the winter the sand is blown over the grass and buries it sometimes three or four feet deep, but the hardy blades grow up next season, as if the island sands had protected them from the cold of winter in order to make them all the stronger.

"The island itself is fighting for self preservation. It seems as if it drew ships into its fatal embrace as rallying points for its loose and shifting sand, thus to protect itself by a bulwark of wrecks against annihilation by the sea. Tradition says that when Sable island was discovered by Cabot in 1447 it was 80 miles long and 10 miles wide. In 1802, when a rescue station was established there, it was only 40 miles long. Since then it has shrunk to but little more than 20 miles in length, and in width it is only a mile at its widest. Within 28 years the western end lost seven miles. Shoals over which the ocean now surges are pointed out as former sites of lighthouses. One of these was so swiftly undermined by the sea that it had to be abandoned with the greatest precipitation. The spot where once stood the superintendent's house is now under two fathoms of water.

"The island, rapidly diminishing at its western end, is slightly gaining at its eastern. Slowly, like a ship dragging its anchor, it is moving eastward. Will it ever reach the edge of the shoals, stand tottering on the brink of the abyss till it receives its coup de grace and plunge over the submarine bank forever into the depths? Unfortunately its end will probably be less dramatic. There is good ground for believing that this gray sand bar will slowly wear away until it becomes another submerged shoal added to an ambuscade already some 60 miles in length, for a line of breakers extends 16 miles from one end of the island and 28 miles from the other.

"In the space of a single year Sable island claimed more than 200 lives. In fact, so many wrecks line the shoals of this ocean graveyard that the new pile up on the old, like bodies heaped in one ditch. The Crofton Hall, an iron sailing ship wrecked a few years ago on the northeast bar, broke in two about amidships. The pieces have drifted together again, and the islanders suppose that she struck crosswise upon an old submerged wreck and is settling over it, which accounts for the two parts coming together. Nor is the island satisfied with the awful tribute which it exacts from the living. The same informant who writes me about the Crofton Hall adds that the bark John McLeod, which was wrecked off Devil's island at the entrance to Halifax harbor, drifted ashore on Sable island bottom up, a wreck of a wreck!

"One of the grimmest legends of Sable island dates from the wreck of the Amelia, and there is enough evidence of truth connected with it to show what bloody deeds were added on that occasion to the terrors of shipwreck. Captain Torrens, who commanded the gunboat which was dispatched to Sable island after the wreck of the Amelia, was one of the survivors of the second disaster. A passenger on the lost transport was Lady Copeland, on her way to join her husband. The captain of the gunboat had been told that she wore on her forefinger a ring of peculiar artifice.

"The story has it that Captain Torrens, wandering over the island one night in search of possible survivors, was attracted by the piteous whining of his dog in front of a small, open shelter known to have existed at that time, but long since toppled to pieces. Approaching the shelter, he was startled to see the figure of a woman all in white and holding toward him the bleeding stump of a forefinger. While he was gazing at the apparition it rose, silently glided past him and dived into the sea. But time and again thereafter the white woman with bleeding forefinger was seen wandering over the sand hills.

"It is probably only part of the weird legend that Captain Torrens, feeling sure that a shocking crime had been committed, tracked the guilty pirate until he discovered his family on the coast of Labrador and learned that the ring had been sold in Halifax. It is a fact, however, that many years after the disaster Lady Copeland's ring was discovered in a jewelry store in Halifax and was returned to her family. From that hour her ghost has ceased to haunt the island."

Surprised.

DOWNING A FAVORITE.

Greeted by an Enthusiastic Audience Last Night.

The academy was not crowded last night, but it was a representative and appreciative audience that heard Robert Downing in the comedy drama "An Indiana Romance." The name of Robert Downing is a familiar one and has long been a synonym for excellence among theater-goers.

He was hero of the play last night, and as an easy actor he has not been excelled on this stage. The rugged honesty and bravery of the character portrayed by him in winning his bride was shown in the simplicity of an unlettered man who felt the noble impulses and viewed the grander things of life by natural instinct alone. He was ably supported by Miss Harriette Weems and a good company of other artists.

The play itself was rather tame. That is the piece; but what there was in it was brought out. Such a strong company should play a heavier piece. However, "An Indiana Romance" was much enjoyed and liberally applauded.

There is one attache of the management at the A ademy, a curtain boy, we suppose, who persists in showing himself on the stage and often at a time when the sight of his face, peeping from behind the scenes detracts from the performance The people pay their money to see the show and not the hands employed to shift the scenes.

NATIONAL PARK.

Start a Movement Towards Making One of the Battle Ground.

A thoughtful citizen today suggested that a concerted effort be begun here to induce the government to take charge of the Guilford Battle Ground and convert it into a national park. This would certainly be a great scheme for this section, as well as a means of forever taking care of the battle ground. The goverament has for sometime been following the policy of converting battlegrounds into parks, and there is no reason why this one should not be. Indeed, it is suggested that there are certain circumstances that would make the scheme practically certain of success, were it taken up and worked.

Arrested for Theft.

George Culbert, has been arrested on a charge of stealing an overcoat from the hall of Lindsay street school several days ago. The coat belonged to one of the teachers, Prof. Broadhurst, and was found at the Pressing Club yesterday, where the negro had left it for repairs. Culbert denies that he stole the coat, saying that he had gotten it from a fellow he does not know. He says, however, that he can find the fellow if turned loose. That kind of bail will hardly catch the authorities.

The prisoner was given a hearing before Mayor Taylor this morning and in default of bail was sent to jail. He was carried up to Winston this afternoon.

He Said it Himself.

During a hotly contested political campaign in the county some years ago, one of our old citizens who was a candidate for office, during his speech was making some charge against his opponent. As he finished his political enemy rose to his feet and with red face and wrath in his voice cried out, "You can't prove it," To this the old citizen dryly remarked, "Don t have to prove it. I said it myself."

This brings to mind the reliable dry goods house of Johnson & Dorsett. They are quiet and unassuming gentlemen, but you can bet on them being to the front with all the best and newest things that are to be found in an up-to-date dry goods and notion emporium. And what they are telling you are facts, but while they don't have to prove what they say, still they are ready and willing to do so. Read their new ad. on front page.

is where we stand in the lumber business. At the kicking post, as it were, in regard to prices.

First comes the owner of the timber. He just woke up to the value of it and wants double last year's prices. Then the sawmill man. He has not been making a fortune and thinks now he should share a little in the general prosperity.

They say to us: "We must have so much for our trees and work." After a while it is "up to you." Don't kick. You don't suppose we have nerve enough to put up prices unless they had first been put up on us. No, indeed. But prices are NOT high. They have been to low and are just now getting reasonable. Your children will be glad to build at double the price it now costs you. It is a trite, but true saying, if you want to build, "Now is the time."

And ours is the place to get the stuff.
